Ralph Dale Provost

Local Servicemen
Visit East Berlin

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Provost from their son, Ralph Dale Provost, telling them of his trip to West Berlin and the Russian Zone of Germany. Dale and three of his friends from Salt Lake City were invited to West Berlin to be the guests of Cpl. and Mrs. Sherman Davies who are cousins of Dales and are stationed in West Berlin. Cpl. Davies got special permission from the Russian officials to take the party into the Red sector where they did plenty of sight-seeing. They seen the Brandenburg Gate, saw the desolate Reichstag where Hitler lived, crossed to the Unter Den Linden, down Wilhelmstrasse and past the Chancellery, seen the royal palace and the statue of Stalin. Besides many other interesting places, everything in the Red Zone is blacked out at night. The soldiers were watching every move that they made while there. After three days at West Berlin Dale and his friends returned to his post at Hanau just nine miles from Frankfurt where Dale is chief clerk and typist at HQS and Dale will sail for home about the 20th of September to join his wife, parents and family. He says hello to all his friends.

Utah National guard

has new leader

Wave 18 Dec 1980

Although the Utah National Guard has a new adjutant general, its philosophies and direction will not change.

"The goals and objectives of the Utah National Guard will continue to be the same," said Brig. Gen. Van Hixson. "We will continue to increase strength and improve training to maintain the Guard's high standards of excellence."

General Hixson was appointed to his present position by Utah Governor Scott M. Matheson in November. He replaces Lt. Gen. Maurice L. Watts, who retired after serving 16 years as the state adjutant general.

General Hixson joined the Utah National Guard in 1938. He was called to active duty in 1941 and was commissioned as a second Lieutenant in 1943 after completing Army Air Corps flight training.

He served in Europe in World War II and earned such commendations as the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters.

Upon his return to Utah after the war, General Hixson served briefly with the Air Corps Reserve before rejoining the Utah National Guard in November of 1946. He has been a member of the Guard since.

General Hixson became an artillery officer upon his return to the state and was assigned as a battery commander. He became the aviation officer for Headquarters of the XI Corps Artillery in October of 1947 and served in that position until becoming the state aviation officer in October of 1952.

The 653rd Observation Battalion was General Hixson's next stop. He became its commander in 1957 and served until 1959. He then was reassigned as XI Corps' aviation officer.

Another call to active duty came to General Hixson in October of 1961. He served as aviation officer for Headquarter III Corps Artillery during that tour.

General Hixson returned to the Utah National Guard in September of 1962 and returned to his position as XI Corps' aviation officer.

In December 1967 General Hixson was appointed as the assistant adjutant general, a position in which he served until Lt. Gen. Watts' retirement.

During his service in the Utah National Guard General Hixson has attended the University of Utah and numerous military schools. Among the military schools he attended were the Command and General Staff College and the Senior Reserve Officer Course at the War College.

General Hixson and his wife, Cae, live in Salt Lake City. They have raised three sons, Ryan, Scott and Brett. The former two are members of the Utah National Guard with Ryan serving as an officer in the 114th Evacuation Hospital and Scott serving as battery commander of C Battery, 1st Battalion 140th Field Artillery (155mm towed) in Spanish Fork.
